MEDITATIONS TO PRAY THE ROSARY

By Father Gaultier De Chaillé

The resurrection of the flesh is one of the cornerstones of the Christian faith, and also the first obstacle that presents itself to those who are interested in it: it is not only a question of believing that Jesus of Nazareth has risen, but also to believe in an absolutely unheard-of destiny of the body. Yet the resurrection is no nonsense. If we pay attention to it, we discover that it is our body itself which, in certain experiences as in its ultimate aspirations, attests that it is indeed the horizon of our humanity. Father Gaultier de Chaillé offers meditations, nourished by a deep attention to our human condition, to bring to the readers the immense mystery of an eternal life which is at the root of our bodies.

By Brother Francis of Assisi

Key words: self-development – Hope – spirituality

Our society of well-being, paradoxically so anxiety-provoking, knows how to offer easy solutions, finding in ancient oriental wisdoms or in psychological sciences some authentic good recipes. Alas, they often tend us to withdraw into ourselves.

It leads to accepting the confrontation with reality, of discovering under the rough bark the gift of God's peace, to become a contagious witness of this true peace.

This book intends to show that spiritual warfare is a banal reality of the Christian life, and that the struggle it involves is less directed against temptations than for our freedom. It unfolds day by day, at the heart of our daily choices, without involving anything apparently spectacular, and has as its horizon a fully incarnated and balanced holiness.
